“ My favorite memory with my grandfather was him teaching me to fish at their lake house in Denmark, ME. I was probably no more than 6-7 and Gramps bought me my first fishing pole with a zebco reel. He would take me out in the morning on the boat before everyone else was up and he put me on my first fish. This was the beginning of my love for fishing and the outdoors, which has been a lifetime passion of mine. I've often reflected on that day while I've been out on the water, and the memory has become even more pronounced now that I've had the opportunity to do the same with my own daughter.

As I remember my grandfather I'm most thankful for the time he spent with me, his zeal for life, and his commitment to his family and friends. His work ethic was exemplary and between he and my father that value/expectation has also been an amazing gift.

While he'll be greatly missed he will be with me daily whether it's a day in the office, time on the water, or time spent with my own family.

Thank you Gramps for the time, attention, love, and values that have had a big part in making me the man I am today.

Your grandson,

Jonathan Constant
