“ My favorite memories of Brendan are when the whole Mericantante family would go up to Sebago lake for vacation together. I loved when the kids would play on the beach and splash in the water as we looked on. All the cousins would get so excited to walk together to get ice cream at the store, "no adults allowed because we are big enough" they would say. I cherish the time and memories and will remember Brendan with love and heartbreak for his beautiful soul that will be carried on in our love for him. ❤️

“ I'll never forget going to the Bronx Zoo with Brendan and my kids. I made a wrong turn and called myself an idiot. Well, Brendan was just at the age where he liked to repeat what adults said. He repeated the words, "Aunt Sharon, you're an idiot" for the rest of the weekend. He taught me a good lesson, watch my words or they'll get thrown back at me by a smiling, cute 4 year old. It was a good lesson and one I definitely needed. He was a strong, good hearted fun loving person. He tried to break from the grip his disease had in him. He had a lot to live for, but the disease was too strong. I wish it hadn't been. Now we he knew him must live knowing he is no longer here to illuminate our lives. My sadness has no words. May he be at peace and may all who knew him remember his light and find a way to help others who also suffer from this disease.
