March 3, 1945 - January 15, 2012

In Loving Memory of James Robert Cosier

James was a lifelong teacher and learner who touched countless people. He taught all of us many lessons about how best to live our lives. He taught us about loyalty and friendship. James maintained friendships that lasted many, many years, and was incredibly loyal to those close to him. He taught us about work ethic. James did not grow up with much and worked extremely hard to achieve success. He taught us the importance of fun and enjoyment. James loved vacations, relaxing in Florida, music, sports, and margaritas or wine just about anywhere. It was difficult not to enjoy spending time with him. Most importantly, he taught about valuing family. The love James had for his wife, children, and grandchild was immeasurable. He would do anything and give everything for his family. James will live on through his friends and family continuing to remember and honor all he has taught us.
