“ I have too much to say..but still don't know how to say it..Today is worse than most...We buried my best friend on Wednesday..I have to keep telling myself this so I can grasp reality..but it still won't set in. I love my best friend & have missed her since I moved here..so it seems like its just another extra day that I will miss her. I dont know whats going on...Paula & I held each other & listened to Randi's songs & I know that Randi was there..you can just feel it..its overwhelming & gives you the chills. To hold her niece & tell her Auntie is an angel now should have been my reality check..but it wasn't. I'm still full of anger & I still yell. I am waiting for you Randi to give me a sign...even though they are in front of me evrywhere. Your family is the most amazing supportive group of people I have ever seen, God they love you & they supported me like I was you. There pain for you is so hard to watch but it shows that they are crying out for you & I hope you can help us all heal. Please be there for Your Mom,Dad,your sister & your brother...They hold a horrible feeling of guilt & they need you to help lift them up. I love you so much Randi Bowden . I love your family. I will be coming back to NH to see them & I hope you'll visit us when I'm there.

This song is for you, your parents & Ciara Bowden . Rest well my randiddlah. I miss you so much.

“ Such a tragedy to never be able to hug you again. For someone so opinionated and so heartfelt on issues she believed in, twenty two years just wasn't long enough to impact this world.

However it was long enough to impact my world and any one else's life who was blessed enough to be graced by her presence. This day is sad enough, so I don't want to add to the tears. I'd rather rejoice in her memory and picture her beautiful smile. Randi wasn't your typical girly, girl and that's what made her unique. She was a daughter, sister, friend. Most of all she was special. She was special to me and will always hold a special place in my heart. There are so many things left unsaid and so many what if's. I'll just have to be satisfied with the time we shared and the memories we made. I'll push thru life pretending everything is ok, because that's what you would want. Truth be told there will be a big hole in my heart. Life is about choices. Unfortunately bad choices led us to this unthinkable day. To any one who hears this or reads this let Randi's life be remembered. Let her death serve a higher purpose. Let her not have died in vain. Life is about choices and those choices can take your life in the blink of an eye. Those choices can leave behind whole families torn to pieces. Never take life for granted, when you've been granted life. So now we are left here to pick up the pieces and continue on with life. I know now that things Randi and I enjoyed doing together will have to be done alone, but also for the both of us. So when I watch the Patriots, I'll have to cheer a little bit louder. When I see the Celtics I'll have to follow a little closer. When I see an animal I'll have to pet it a little longer. In a way I guess I'm selfish. I know I'll always have my own personal guardian angel with me. I know as the days and weeks and years roll on, things will get easier. I can promise you although the pain will subside, your memory will never fade. I know you will be with us. We may not be able to see you, but I know we will feel you. I love you doll and I miss you so much. I know God just officially crowned you with the title "Angel", but you have always had your wings in my eyes. Catch you on the flipside love.

We were talking about her love of old songs and singing on the beach at night at OOB...and Mike reminded me of the "Brandy" song and how we used to change the words to "Randi, you're a fine girl".... and that is certainly fitting, she was. Dear Dale, Paula ,Ciera and Donnie, I cannot find the words to express the sorrow I feel for your loss!! I had only meet Randi a few times in her short life and all though I did not know her as well as others, Auntie Lou has always spoken so WELL of her over of how loving and caring she was and how she always had the time for anyone or animal in need. Please try to find comfort in knowing she is in a place to watch over all of you and be your own SPECIAL ANGEL, I know right now you would rather have her here with you than as your angel, But his is her new role now and with her loving ways, She will be the very best one there is!! May she find eternal rest and may you all find some peace as well.

“ From the time you were a little girl, your smile had that little curl, that gave you your michievous grin.

*just the look on your face, could cheer up the place.
what heart could not welcome you in.*

*you were loved in our home, as one of our own.
Thank you for the good times you brought.*

through good times and bad the happy and sad, you gave of yourself without thought.

from playing in the sand to lemonade stands to the basement to put on a show.

*from kids in bunk beds to mohawks and dreads.
into a woman we watched you grow.*

*but we grieve now these days, each in our ways,
for lifes joys we'll not get to share.*

and as we grieve we still can't believe our friend will no longer be there.

we pray god greets you in heaven, and grants all the joy that entails.
